

"Reformation of Medical Education"

Huq MM¹

A reform activity of the Health Sector is going on by a gov't installed as 'Health Reform Commission' recently. The reform includes different a total review & recommendations of education & training of different types & categories of health professionals which includes Medical Education. Interaction with teachers of a few private & government medical colleges were done to get feedback of the current situation. It is expected the recommendations in future if properly & timely implemented might bring an improvement in future education as well as trainings.

However most important part of education & training of the graduates is the continuing education to keep the graduates updated with the present & future advancements on both content & process of teaching learning. Center for Medical Education has an enormous role in these context. All professionals & paraprofessional need continuing education to keep them updated with modern day advancements & their applications.

All the trainings need to be accredited training with credit accumulation & transfer for future recruitment, promotions or appointment as well as in any evaluation process. The accrediting body for continuing education need to be led by highly qualified reputed professionals in different specialty but preferably with the knowledge of educational pedagogy. Meetings, Seminars, conferences be included in educational advancement of professionals as continuing education & be accredited too. These are now the modern practices. Centre for medical Education can play a vital role in these evaluation & accreditation process. It is expected that this credible role of CME can make it an institute of vital importance in future for the country as well as abroad. Let's hope the institute will take initiative to add this noble task along with their normal activities.

Professor M Muzaherul Huq

Former Regional Adviser, WHO South East Asia Region

Adviser, SEARAME

Phone- +880 1977-521701; 01711521701

e-mail: muzaherul@hotmail.com